THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Botts's Articles of Impeachment-No Exchequer-Oregon Territory, &c.
Co. respondence of The Tribute.
Wassington, January 9, 1843. In the House of Representatives to-day, on motion of Mr. Briggs, a resolution was Adopted Dictionary of ARTS, MANUFACTURES for the allowance from the commencement of the session of the pay of such Members as left their respective homes in season for arrival at that time, but were detained by accident, storms, &c.

Mr. Borrs gave notice that to-morrow he should bring forward, according to his notice of

Mr. FILLMORE, from the Committee of Ways and Means, to whom was referred the President's plan of Exchequer, made a report, accompanied by a unanimous resolution of the Committee that the plan ought not to be adopted. The report is an elaborate and able investigation of the subject of the Currency, and will be read with much in-

Mr. ATHERTON, from the same Committee, on behalf of the minority, reported an amendment to the resolution to add instructions to that Committee to report a bill embracing substantially the provisions of the Sub-Treasury.

Mr. FILLMORE moved the printing of the usual number and 10,000 extra copies of both reports, and the postponement of the further consideration and the postponement of the further consideration of the subject, and the making it the special order. THE BACHELOR AND OTHER TALES, by of the subject, and the making it the special order for two weeks from to-day.

On this an interesting debate arose and extended

Mr. Cushing impugned the action of the Committee of Ways and Means, and contended that it was their duty instead of reporting a negative proposition, if they did not concur in the plan of the President, to have reported a modification or substitute for it, so that the House might have the subject before them for action in all its forms.

Mr. ARSOLD moved the previous question, but withdrew it at the request of several gentlemen on ascertaining that, if sustained, it would cut off the motion to postpone and bring the House to a direct vote on the resolution and amendment. Mr. Cushing moved to refer the subject to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union. Mr. Botts went for the postponement of the subject for full examination. As a member of the Committee of Ways and Means he said he had preferred that they should report a specific measure, viz: a Bank of the U. States.

Mr. FILLMORE replied to Mr. Cushing, and ex plained and defended the action of the Committee of Ways and Means. He said that by the terms of the resolution of the House, referring the subject to them and naming the Exchequer, it was made their duty to report upon it specifically, and believing as he did and as a majority of the Committee did, that the plan of the President was so isherently defective that it could not be amended so as to make it worthy of support, they had conceived it their duty to bring it before the House in this manner that (as was due to the President, to the country and to the subject,) a direct vote should be taken upon it by Yeas and Nays. He did not believe there ever had been a moment since its first introduction into Congress, when it could have received a single vote in either House.

He said the subject of the currency was now before the House in every form in which it could be presented, and held up to view the inconsistency of Mr. Cushing in charging the majority with the delay of business, when, after keeping the President's plan in the Select Committee last Session nine weeks before it was reported, he had moved but twice last Session to take it up at this Session of which more than one third had already gone and of which they were spending week after week in the discussion of abstractions and general politics in which the gentleman himself had led off, he had not moved to take it up at all. He was ready to aid the gentleman by his vote whenever he would move to take up his bill, and he wished it fully

Mr. F. in reply to an inquiry said the Committee of Ways and Means did not intend proposing any other plan at this Session.

Mr. MARSHALL devoted his his position,' which proved to be in the Webster party, with little or no regard for Mr. Tyler. Mr. GRANGER made a spirited speech in advoca-cacy of the resolution of Mr. Fillmore, in defence of the action of the Whig majority on this subject, &c. &c. The subject was further debated by Messrs. J

R. INGERSOLL, PICKENS, WISE, TURNEY, J. CAMPBELL of S. C. &c. till adjournment. IN SENATE to-day petitions were presented in favor of the repeal of the Bankrupt law by Messrs. WRIGHT and ARCHER and against it by Messrs. MILLER and KERR.

Mr. Crafts presented resolutions of the Legis lature of Vermont in favor of the repeal of the Bankrupt law; of limiting the franking privilege and reducting the rates of letter postage; of allowing pensions to widows of Revolutionary soldiers; and against the annexation of Texas to the

Mr. TAPPAN presented the credentials of his colleague, WM. ALLEN, as Senator elect for 6 years from the 4th of March next.

Mr. CRITTENDEN from the Committee on the Judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill refunding to Massachusetts the amount of disbursements made by her during the last War with Great Bri-

Bills for the relief of claimants to indemnities received from the British Government for loss of slaves on the Comet and Encomium; and for the relief of persons residing within the limits of Arkansas and Louisiana, but who found themselves cut off by the running of the boundary line with Texas, were passed.

The bill to provide for the occupation and settlement of the Oregon Territory, being called up for its final passage,

Mr. CALHOUN, at some length, examined the bill, the validity of our claims to that country, and the history of our negociations on the subject with Great Britain. He objected to a portion of the bill, as violating the treaty of 1827, as impolitic and dangerous, and advocated its reference to a committee for modification, and careful consideration. Mr. Linn in an carnest manner replied to the objections of Mr. C. and urged its passage. Mr. CHOATE expressed his regret that he could not approve the bill, and coincided in the objections of Mr. Calhoun. He reviewed the subject in a very able and eloquent manner and desired its proper modification and passage.

Mr. Linn answered with much vehemence, de nouncing the aggressions of Great Britain, the injustice she had done our citizens through the Hudson's Bay Company, inciting the Indians to the murder of our traders and trappers, &c and advocated a firm and determined maintenance of our Messrs. McRoberts and Henderson followed in a similar strain, urging the immediate passage of the bill.

Mr. BAYARD proposed an amendment which was not received, being objected to by Mr. CALHOUN, the Senate adjourned.
